

New York State Archives

Strengthening Archives

Records Management Assessment Objectives

- You know what records created by your historical records program are worthy of long term preservation.
- Permanent records are retained in a format that facilitates long-term preservation.
- You regularly destroy non-permanent records such as purchase orders, receipts, and routine correspondence.
- Research requests, research room registration forms and records request slips are stored securely and protected from unauthorized access.

| Assessment Question | Yes | No | Needs Improvement | Areas for Improvement |
|---|------------|-----------|--------------------------|--|
| Have you identified the administrative and operational records created by your repository worthy of long-term preservation? | | | | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Survey your office records and develop a list of permanent records• Identify appropriate preservation formats for those records. |
| Are records relating to users of your collections protected from unauthorized access? | | | | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Find a secure storage space (e.g. locked filing cabinet) for storing researcher information. Restrict access to the information to archives staff. |
| Do you regularly destroy the non-permanent administrative and operational records of your repository? | | | | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Develop a schedule for reviewing records to determine if they can be destroyed.• Document the destruction of non-permanent records. |
| Do you have policies and procedures governing the retention and destruction of administrative and operational records of your repository? | | | | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Draft a set of policies including a retention schedule, disaster plan, access policy, and storage and preservation recommendations for your records. |